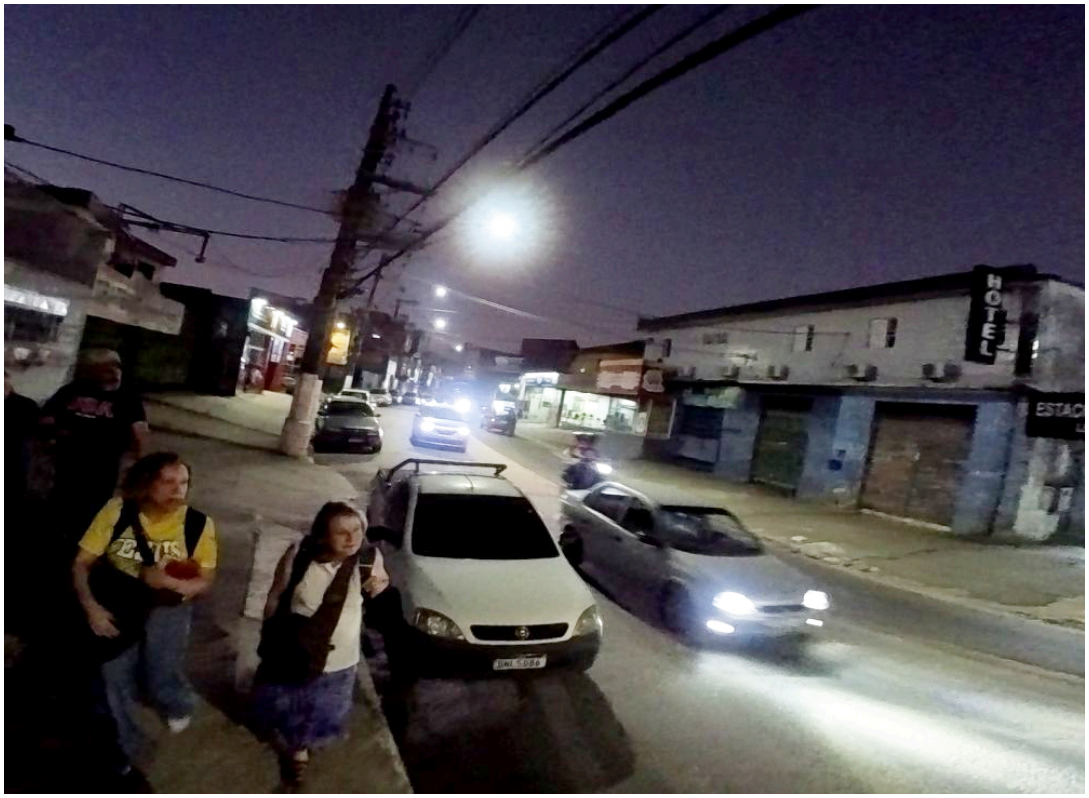
Long Days, Short Nights

We always say we want to be busy on these trips. We don't spend thousands of dollars, 10 days of our time and fly 24 hours to sit around. We want to be busy sharing the gospel.

The days started with the alarm going off at 6:30. Toss on some clothes and go downstairs for breakfast. Devotion and team meeting is at 7:45. Back to the room to grab backpacks for a pickup at 8:00. Drive through traffic 30-40 minutes to the church. Make some visits in the morning or talk to the kids at the project (more on that later.) Eat lunch at the church, make more visits in the afternoon. Dinner at the church, then in the evening we would make more visits or maybe attend a house church. Back to the church to collect everyone in the right car and drive back to the hotel - less traffic this time - arriving 10:00-11:00. Crawl into bed. The alarm will go off again at 6:30.

A funny story happened on one of the return drives to the hotel. The church had arranged for an Uber to take us. Before we started, the driver asked if we were assured of our salvation. We replied we were.

He then asked if we died tonight, would we go to heaven. I replied, “Yes, I’m sure I would go to heaven, but I hope you are not driving us there tonight.” He was actually a good driver.



We go to share the Gospel
